

Meet Chameleon Class's New Teacher

Mr McCurdy

A little bit about me:

My name is Mr McCurdy and I have taught at my current school for eight years. I have a wife, and two boys called Noah who is 7 and Theo who is 4.

I am from Northern Ireland and like to take my family back there as often as possible. We love going to the seaside and other adventures.

My favourite things:

My hobbies include running, football and rugby. I support Newcastle United and Northern Ireland.

In school, I am in charge of Maths and love how our children in school are so positive about their maths learning.

I love being a teacher because...

I love how I can make a difference and see how children get more independent and confident with their learning.
